

Dr. Steve Fawkes is an internationally recognized expert in energy efficiency. In a 30 year plus career he has advised many companies and local governments, as well as national governments.

He has also developed innovative energy services for companies including the Guinness breweries, a great client to have.

He is a thought leader on financing energy efficiency and heavily involved in several European initiatives, including the Investor Confidence Project Europe which he transferred across the Atlantic.

He actually grew up wanting to be an astronaut, and despite his commitment to energy efficiency he once made the ultimate gas guzzling trip — flying in a Mig 25 to 82,000 feet, the edge of space.

Please welcome Dr. Steve Fawkes!